

Resources for International Students

We work closely with the Office of International Students to cater to international students. Check Handshake for international student-specific opportunities and events.

➤ GoinGlobal

GoinGlobal is an international, country-specific, online system to support relocation, career transition, global job searches & career development as well as alternative opportunities for Johns Hopkins University students. You will need to use your JHED and password to log into the resource.

➤ JHU Office of International Services (OIS)

JHU Office of International Services (OIS), can help students figure out options for Curricular Practical Training (CPT) for internships and Optional Practical Training (OPT) post-grad, and about student and staff visas for work in the U.S.

➤ H1-B Visa Salary Database

Use the H1B Visa Salary Database to find information on H1-B Visa base salaries, employment start dates, and case statuses.

➤ International Business Research Guide

Research the environment, culture and companies in your country of interest using this International Business Research Guide.

➤ What International Students Should Highlight

Because you require sponsorship, you have to be TWICE as competitive as those who don't. Use tips from this presentation by Careerly to "sell" yourself:

- Global mindset: languages, international experience, working and living in different countries, ability to work cross-culturally
- Key skills and competencies: if they are technical – be specific -> what can you do better than others?

Did you know international students have a designated Life Design Educator?
